Committee Charters, Quorum and Meeting Procedure Training Course

Ref: 888_33557 Date: 12 – 16 July 2027 Location: Madrid Fees: 5600 GBP

Committee Charters, Quorum and Meeting Procedure is a 1-week training course for board secretaries and committee coordinators who build a committee operating calendar with a matching set of minute templates. As boards delegate more scrutiny to audit, nomination, remuneration and risk committees, each delegated decision depends on a valid mandate, a properly constituted meeting and a defensible record. Jupiter Prime Training offers this course on committee charters, quorum and meeting procedure.

Why Committee Charters, Quorum and Meeting Procedure Matters Now

Three forces now shape committee work: investors and lenders who read committee reports closely, directors who sit on several committees and expect concise papers, and auditors who test whether minutes show real deliberation. A committee that drifts beyond its charter, meets without quorum or records decisions loosely exposes the board to challenge, delays approvals and weakens accountability. The course rests on widely used corporate governance codes and principles, the articles of association of the company, and the delegated authority matrix that links each committee back to the full board.

Who Gains Most from Committee Charters, Quorum and Meeting Procedure

- Those who draft and maintain committee terms of reference and the delegated authority matrix
- Those who prepare agendas, collate papers and circulate meeting packs to committee members
- Those who record deliberations, resolutions and dissent in committee minutes
- Those who keep declarations of interest and advise chairs on recusal
- Those who follow up committee actions and report their status to the board

A corporate secretariat or governance office gains most when several of its coordinators attend together and agree one shared house style for charters, packs and minutes.

Committee Charters, Quorum and Meeting Procedure Capabilities

Participants leave able to run a committee cycle that holds up when a director, auditor or investor asks how a decision was reached.

- Draft a committee charter with clear scope, membership, reporting lines and review cycle — informing the board decision to delegate authority
- Design a forward agenda and annual committee calendar — serving chairs who balance standing items against emerging issues
- Specify quorum, voting and written resolution rules — protecting the validity of each committee decision
- Apply a conflict of interest procedure from declaration to recusal — serving independent members and external reviewers
- Build minute and action log templates that capture deliberation and ownership — serving the board and auditors
- Communicate committee outcomes to the full board through concise reports — informing board oversight

Key Committee Charters, Quorum and Meeting Procedure Terms

- Committee charter — the document setting a committee's purpose, authority, membership, meeting rules and reporting duties to the board.
- Quorum — the minimum number of eligible members who must be present for a meeting to take valid decisions.
- Casting vote — an extra vote held by the chair, used only to break a tie where the charter allows it.
- Written resolution — a decision taken without a meeting, by signed consent of the members the charter specifies.
- Recusal — a member's withdrawal from discussion and voting on a matter where a conflict of interest exists.
- Action log — a running record of each committee decision's owner, deadline and status, reviewed at every meeting.

Committee Charters, Quorum and Meeting Procedure Questions FAQ

What are committee charters, quorum and meeting procedure, and why do they matter now?

They are the rules that give a board committee its mandate and make its decisions valid. They matter now because investors, auditors and directors increasingly test whether committee decisions were properly authorised, constituted and recorded.

Who gains most from committee charters, quorum and meeting procedure skills?

Board secretaries, committee coordinators and governance officers gain most. You will use these skills whenever you draft terms of reference, prepare packs, count a quorum, record a vote or follow up actions after a committee meeting.

How does a course on committee charters, quorum and meeting procedure differ from a board secretary course?

It focuses on committees rather than the full board cycle. A general board secretary course covers board packs and company records broadly, while this one goes deeper into committee mandates, quorum and voting rules, recusal and action tracking.

What do you bring back from committee charters, quorum and meeting procedure training?

You bring back a committee operating calendar and a set of minute templates. Both are drafted during the course and can be adapted to the committees you support in your own organisation.

Committee Charters, Quorum and Meeting Procedure: The Way Forward

The committee operating calendar and minute template set first inform the chair's decision on next year's meeting dates and standing items. Committee secretaries use them to plan packs and record each meeting consistently. After the first full cycle, revisit how well the action log closes items and whether the charter still matches what the committee actually decides.
