JUPITER PRIME

Consulting • Training • Advisory

جوبيتر برايم للاستشارات والتدريب

COURSE BROCHURE

Global Leadership Skills for Multicultural Teams Training Course

10 – 14 May 2027
Paris

jupiterprime.uk

info@jupiterprime.uk

Registered in the United Kingdom and Saudi Arabia

Global Leadership Skills for Multicultural Teams Training Course

Ref: 1563_57471 Date: 10 – 14 May 2027 Location: Paris Fees: 5900 GBP

Global Leadership Skills for Multicultural Teams is a 1-week training course for leaders of international and multicultural teams who coordinate people across cultures, time zones and regional offices, and it ends with a Multicultural Team Operating Charter. Organisations now staff projects with colleagues from many backgrounds who rarely share an office, so the leader's ability to bridge cultural expectations shapes speed, trust and retention. Jupiter Prime Training offers this course on Global Leadership Skills for Multicultural Teams.

Why Global Leadership Skills for Multicultural Teams Matters Now

Three trends make cross-cultural leadership a daily task. Distributed working means teams span several time zones and meet mostly on screen. Talent markets are international, so a single unit may include colleagues from a dozen cultural backgrounds. Customers, suppliers and regulators in different regions also expect leaders to respect local norms while keeping one standard. Teams led with cultural intelligence decide faster and lose fewer people; teams led with one default style suffer silent disagreement and misread signals. The course draws on Hofstede's cultural dimensions, Erin Meyer's Culture Map, the cultural intelligence CQ model and the global mindset concept.

Who Gains Most from Global Leadership Skills for Multicultural Teams

- Leaders whose direct reports sit in several countries and time zones
- Regional managers who align local offices with head-office priorities
- Project leads who coordinate contractors and partners from different cultures
- Functional heads who integrate teams after cross-border mergers or relocations
- Expatriate managers taking on teams in a new cultural setting

Regional leadership groups that manage dispersed staff gain most when several members attend together and agree common norms for virtual collaboration.

Global Leadership Skills for Multicultural Teams Capabilities

Participants practise reading cultural signals, adapting their leadership style and building rhythms that keep dispersed colleagues aligned.

- Assess personal cultural preferences against team members' profiles — leadership style choices
- Apply the Culture Map scales to diagnose friction in feedback, trust and decisions — team cohesion
- Design a virtual meeting rhythm fair to every time zone — dispersed colleagues
- Communicate feedback and disagreement in ways that land across cultures — individual performance
- Build trust with remote stakeholders through task and relationship signals — regional partners

- Specify team norms in a written charter that new members can follow — onboarding and integration

Key Global Leadership Skills for Multicultural Teams Terms

- Cultural Intelligence CQ — the capability to function effectively across national, ethnic and organisational cultures through drive, knowledge, strategy and action.
- Cultural Dimensions — measurable differences between cultures, such as power distance and individualism, used to compare workplace expectations.
- Culture Map — a framework of eight scales describing how cultures differ in communicating, evaluating, persuading, leading, deciding, trusting, disagreeing and scheduling.
- Global Mindset — the openness and knowledge that let a leader influence people and systems unlike their own.
- High-Context Communication — a style in which meaning relies on shared background and implicit cues rather than explicit words.
- Follow-the-Sun Working — handing tasks between time zones so work progresses around the clock.

Global Leadership Skills for Multicultural Teams Day by Day

Day 1: The Global Leadership Landscape

- Global Mindset Self-Assessment — Gauging Intellectual, Psychological and Social Capital
- Hofstede Cultural Dimensions — Comparing Workplace Expectations Across Cultures
- Cultural Intelligence Model — Building Drive, Knowledge, Strategy and Action
- Personal Culture Profile — Recognising One's Own Default Assumptions
- Team Diversity Mapping — Charting the Backgrounds Within the Unit

Day 2: Communicating and Deciding Across Cultures

- Culture Map Communication Scale — Bridging High- and Low-Context Styles
- Evaluating Scale — Giving Direct and Indirect Negative Feedback
- Deciding Scale — Choosing Consensus or Top-Down Decision Routes
- Persuading Scale — Framing Proposals by Principles or Applications
- Meeting Facilitation Across Cultures — Drawing Out Quieter Voices

Day 3: Leading Dispersed and Virtual Teams

- Time Zone Fairness Grid — Rotating Inconvenient Meeting Slots
- Follow-the-Sun Hand-Off Design — Passing Work Smoothly Between Regions
- Virtual Communication Charter — Choosing Channels for Each Message Type
- Asynchronous Collaboration Practices — Reducing Dependence on Live Meetings
- Remote Engagement Signals — Detecting Isolation and Disengagement Early

Day 4: Trust, Conflict and Stakeholders Across Regions

- Trusting Scale — Balancing Task-Based and Relationship-Based Trust
- Disagreeing Scale — Managing Confrontation Without Damaging Relationships
- Regional Stakeholder Map — Aligning Local Partners With Central Priorities
- Cross-Cultural Negotiation Preparation — Anticipating Expectations on Time and Commitment
- Global-Local Tension Framework — Deciding What to Standardise and Adapt

Day 5: Practising the Multicultural Team Operating Charter

- Feedback Rehearsal — Applying Day 2 Evaluating Techniques With Peers
- Virtual Meeting Simulation — Running the Day 3 Rhythm Across Time Zones
- Stakeholder Role Play — Using the Day 4 Map in a Regional Dispute
- Peer Review Panel — Testing Charters Against Real Team Cases
- Multicultural Team Operating Charter — Finalising Norms, Rhythms and Escalation Routes

Applying Global Leadership Skills for Multicultural Teams After the Course

- Map the team on the Culture Map scales.
- Introduce a time zone fairness grid for recurring meetings.

Global Leadership Skills for Multicultural Teams Questions FAQ

What are global leadership skills for multicultural teams, and why do they matter now?

They are the abilities to lead colleagues from different cultures and locations with fairness and clarity. They matter now because most teams are distributed and diverse, and misread cultural signals slow decisions and damage trust.

Which roles gain most from global leadership skills for multicultural teams training?

Leaders with dispersed or diverse teams gain most, such as regional heads in engineering services or project directors in international development who coordinate staff across time zones.

How do global leadership skills for multicultural teams differ from a general remote team leadership course?

They focus on cultural differences in feedback, trust and decisions as well as distance. A general remote leadership course concentrates on tools and productivity without the cultural lens.

What do you bring back from global leadership skills for multicultural teams training?

You bring back a team charter, a personal culture profile, a team diversity map, a fair meeting rhythm and rehearsed feedback approaches.

Global Leadership Skills for Multicultural Teams: The Way Forward

The Multicultural Team Operating Charter records communication norms, decision routes, meeting rhythms, feedback expectations and escalation paths for a dispersed team. Its first use is the next team meeting, where the leader agrees it with members across locations. After a quarter it is worth revisiting which norms reduced friction and which cultural gaps still slow decisions.